

Amy Kinnamon, RDH, EFDA BSaSC: “Periodontal Regeneration”

September 20th, 2016: 5:30pm-8:00pm

You may register as an entire office, or as an individual.

Course Description:

Regenerative therapies have significantly impacted clinical practice on a number of levels. Building upon bone grafting and guided tissue regeneration techniques, emphasis will be placed on biologic modifiers, particularly enamel matrix derivative. This discussion will focus on regeneration vs. repair and the role of these progressive therapies in the decision making process.

Learning Objectives:

- History of periodontal disease and non surgical therapies
- Implementing a collaborative approach to comprehensive care
- Case presentation and case acceptance
- Repair vs. Regeneration
- History of Enamel Matrix Proteins
- Use of biologic mediators for hard and soft tissue regeneration
- Review of research studies
